

CASE STUDY

Before Jess joined Dorset Healthcare, she went to sixth form at Poole High School and studied Mathematics, Biology and Photography. She also worked at the weekends as an assistant Singing Teacher in a Musical Theatre School.

Jess enjoyed studying science and liked to get involved with what she was learning about. After Apprenticeships were discussed in a school assembly, she decided to look for one that would spark her interest. Some of Jess's friends were also completing Apprenticeships and fully recommended it, which motivated Jess even more.

After searching on NHS Jobs, Jess found an Apprentice vacancy within Human Resources and decided to apply.

Following her interview, Jess was successful in securing the position and started working for the Trust in June 2017.

"I have been lucky to work around people who have been eager and willing to train me, as well as welcoming me into the team"

Jess has since completed her Level 2 Qualification in Business and Administration and has been offered a position within the School Nursing team.

"The most beneficial part of my apprenticeship is that I now have the skills to work for an organisation such as Dorset Healthcare"
