

CASE STUDY

Danielle attended sixth-form at Budmouth College where she studied Business, IT and Law.

At the end of her AS Levels, Danielle no longer wanted to stay in full-time education as she wanted to start earning money and challenge herself by doing something different.

Danielle decided to apply for Apprenticeships which sounded interesting and would develop her skills.

After searching on the Kingston Maurward College website, Danielle found and applied for an Apprentice position within the Occupational Health service at Dorset HealthCare.

In 2016, Danielle was successful in securing the role of Occupational Health and Wellbeing Apprentice and begun working on her Level 2 Business and Administration qualification.

During her apprenticeship, Danielle found that her confidence and communication skills improved significantly. She also attended the National Apprenticeship Event in 2017 and thought that it was a good opportunity to meet the other apprentices and support each other.

Since completing her Apprenticeship, Danielle has secured a permanent role within her service.

“The Apprenticeship has benefitted my career and given me the experience which I may not have been able to gain otherwise”

“Dorset HealthCare were very helpful and understanding!”
