

CASE STUDY

Before Jack started with Dorset HealthCare, he had completed his A Levels and had originally planned to go to University. As he wasn't sure what he wanted to do, he decided to defer his place at University and have a gap year.

During his gap year, Jack believed that University wasn't the right path for him and started applying for Apprenticeships instead, which he had been recommended by his dad who works for the Trust.

In 2015, Jack applied and was successful in securing the Audit Apprentice role in the Nursing and Quality Directorate and begun working on his Level 2 Business and Administration qualification.

During Jack's apprenticeship, he developed his IT skillset and now uses programs, such as Excel, with confidence on a daily basis. Jack has also assisted in delivering training sessions and completing clinical audits.

Since completing his Level 2 Business and Administration qualification, Jack was given the opportunity to stay on within his team and complete a Level 3 qualification in Business and Administration. He has also been involved in events to promote Apprenticeships Dorset-wide and would like to continue this in the future as he really believes in them.

“Since completing my apprenticeship, the potential for career progression is looking really good!”
